Industry 4.0 – the continuing story

Steelmakers are constantly looking to improve the efficiency of their production processes and are relying upon increasingly sophisticated digital technologies to streamline their operations.

In such a fast-moving world, characterised by complex Internet-based manufacturing systems, Future Steel Forum 2018 is a must-attend event for steel professionals who want to unravel the mysteries and get to grips with the complexities of Industry 4.0.

This global steel technology conference will draw upon the unrivalled expertise of steel industry professionals, production technologists and academics to create an event designed specifically for steelmakers seeking a greater understanding of 'smart manufacturing'.

Delegates can expect groundbreaking papers on Industry 4.0 and associated 'disruptive' technologies that are affecting industry generally and steel production in particular.

The canvas will be broader, the net spread wider and other linked topics – such as 3D printing, artificial intelligence and 'social product development' – will be high on the agenda.

Expect lively conversation, animated discussion panels and plenty of networking opportunities.

It goes without saying that myths will be exploded, ideas challenged and terminology explained at what can only be described as a futuristic steel conference.

See full details within this brochure and online.

The goal of Industry 4.0 is the digital penetration of industrial business fields in order to improve the efficiency of production processes. People, machines and manufactured parts that are involved in this process all become interlinked. An additional factor apart from this interconnection is artificial intelligence. This allows intelligent networks to be created within which machines will learn and optimise themselves in the future. Humans participate in these networks. This allows them to access information about their machines and parts regardless of time and location, assess situations, and intervene where necessary.
